Eisenhower Tries Out New Fishing Rod

New England
GOP Leaders
Cheer President

CHITTENDEN, Vt. (AP) — President Eisenhower, garbed in waders and a peaked hat, tried out a new fishing rod in a Vermont trout stream today.

The President took off on a fishing jaunt after eating breakfast with 60 Vermont women representing the dairy and agriculture industries.

After a quick change of clothes, the President slung a box of fishing flies around his neck and headed for Furnace Brook, a trout stream near Chittenden.

He carried a $300 fishing rod presented to him Wednesday by Vermont admirers. He hoped for better luck than Wednesday night when he pulled in three trout and had to toss them back because they were too small.

"Say a Few Words"

The President wanted no political motives attached to his tour of northern New England but Republican state and local leaders have been turning out in droves to cheer him on since his arrival.

He let it be known he would prefer fewer speeches than he found himself making on the trip. But the pressure of local leaders was great and he repeatedly had to "say a few words."

The President was scheduled to go to Concord, N. H., this afternoon where he will speak from the steps of the state Capitol. Tonight he will have some additional "brief remarks" at a picnic given by farm organizations outside Laconia, N. H.

At a dairy festival which brought together not only dairy but political leaders, the President Wednesday heard Sen. George E. Aiken (R-Vt.) suggest not too subtly that the President might have to be "a part-time farmer" for another five or six years.

Officials at Reception

Wednesday night, the Vermont Dairy Festival Committee sponsored a reception in a high school auditorium at Chittenden, and according to state GOP Committee Chairman Edward G. Janeway, the several hundred guests included all officials of the state Republican committee, all of the delegates and alternates who backed Mr. Eisenhower from Vermont at the 1952 Citizens for Eisenhower.

Mr. Eisenhower apparently wanted his New England trip to be a mixture of getting to know the people of a section he has seldom visited, and to enjoy some fishing in the New England lakes and streams. But once on the scene, he found the necessity for greeting old and new political supporters a matter of building pressure.

Constitutional Convention Resolution Adopted by Senate

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Senate today adopted, 29-10, a resolution calling for a constitutional convention to consider a new method of amending the U. S. Constitution.

The resolution, which goes to the House, was also adopted in 1953 by the Illinois Legislature but sponsors said it was necessary to repeat the action to keep the legislation valid.

Bulganin, Nehru Call for Surrender of Formosa, Admission of China to UN

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru called today for the surrender of Formosa to the Chinese Communists and the admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

Nehru then flew to Warsaw after declaring in a farewell statement "part of my heart" remains in Russia.

The two premiers, in a declaration of solidarity issued at the end of Nehru's history-making 15-day visit to Russia, proposed a ban on the manufacture of atomic and hydrogen bombs and an end to experiments with the bombs and called for world disarmament.

They reaffirmed the friendship between the two nations under Nehru's five principles of peaceful co-existence which include non-aggression and non-interference in the internal affairs of other nations and outlined a program of further cooperation between the two nations.

Legitimate Rights

On the Formosan question they said "it is the earnest hope of both prime ministers that it will be possible by peaceful means to satisfy the legitimate rights of the Chinese peoples republic in regard to Taiwan (Formosa)."

The declaration was signed in the Kremlin Wednesday night after a lavish reception and was released this morning shortly before Nehru took off for Warsaw on a European tour that will end in London July 8 when he confers with British Prime Minister Anthony Eden.

Bulganin will return Nehru's visit, probably before the Indian national holiday in January. The declaration climaxed a triumphal visit for Nehru. He was the first foreign diplomat to be cheered openly by great crowds of Russians, the first to visit an atomic plant and the first to be allowed to make speeches in public.

World Tension Lessening

The declaration noted a lessening of world tension through such recent developments as the Austrian treaty and the restoration of relations between Russia and Yugoslavia and said there had been lessening of tension in the Far East.

In this connection the prime ministers stated their conviction "that the continued refusal to admit the Chinese peoples republic to the United Nations lies at the root of many troubles in the Far East and elsewhere."

They praised the Bandung conference for its part in lessening world tension and said the Geneva agreements on Indochina "constitute a notable example of the use of the method of negotiation for solving international conflicts."

They called disarmament the most pressing international question and said the buildup of arms and armaments, conventional as well as atomic has "increased the prevalent fear and suspicion among nations and has had the effect of diverting national resources from their legitimate purpose."

Vote Pensions for Living Holders of Medals of Honor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Wednesday passed by voice vote a bill to grant a $100-a-month pension to all living holders of the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Under present law, Medal of Honor winners receive a $10-a-month pension when they reach age 65. The pending bill, which now goes to the Senate, would not only increase the payment but would remove the age requirement.

The committee estimated that last year there were about 395 living holders of the medal of honor. Chairman Olin E. Teague (D-Tex.) of the veterans committee told the House that some of the Congressional Medal of Honor winners are now "destitute."

The administration opposed the bill, sponsored by Teague.

G. T. Funkhouser Of Eldorado Kills Himself

Aged Man Shoots Himself Early Today in His Room

George T. Funkhouser, 80, resident of Eldorado who made his home at the Lawrence Hunsaker rooming house, 879 South Fourth, died today at 3:20 a. m. from gunshot wounds. His death was declared a suicide following investigation by Coroner Elmer M. Gibbons.

The body was taken to the Eldorado funeral home.

Mr. Funkhouser roomed on the first floor across the hall from Mr. and Mrs. Hunsaker. Mrs. Hunsaker stated that she heard a shot this morning around 3:20, and when Mr. Hunsaker went to investigate he found a light on in the room and the door locked from the inside. He then went to the front porch window and saw Mr. Funkhouser lying on the bed. Upon forcing the door Mr. Hunsaker found that Funkhouser had shot himself thru the right temple with a .32 pistol.

Tenants at the house said that Mr. Funkhouser appeared to be in good spirits last evening while listening to a ball game. But he was afflicted with hardening of the arteries of the brain which caused severe pain to his head, and he had told several people that he planned to take his life, that he would be better off dead.

Mr. Funkhouser left a suicide letter stating reasons for taking his life. Coroner Gibbons stated that there will not be an inquest.

He had lived in Muncie, Ind., where he worked for the Acme Machine Products Co. until a little over a year ago when he came to Eldorado. In Muncie he was a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge and had received a 25-year pin from the Eagles lodge in that city.

He leaves two sons, Ora of Eldorado, and Ira of Detroit, Mich. Funeral services will be Saturday at 10 a. m. at the Eldorado funeral home chapel. Rev. O. C. Cooper will officiate, and burial will be in Poplar cemetery north of Eldorado.

She was a member of the First Methodist church in Eldorado.

Carmi Boy is Fatally Injured At Cave-in-Rock

Daniel Vaught, 7, Dies Following Fall from Bluffs

A seven-year-old Carmi boy, Daniel Vaught, died in Welborn Memorial hospital at Evansville on 10:00 p. m. Wednesday from injuries received in a 70-foot fall at Cave-in-Rock State Park yesterday afternoon.

Daniel, son of Mrs. Harriett Vaught and the late Herman Vaught of Carmi, was playing with an older brother, Tom, 10, and two other youngsters when the fatal accident happened.

It is reported that the four boys were playing along the bluffs about 300 yards up the river from the mouth of the cave and Daniel fell and was found in the rocks at the foot of the bluff, estimated to be 70 feet high. The other boys were unable to tell what happened, only that they saw him falling.

The accident, which occurred about 3:30 p. m., came just before the group was ready to depart for home.

In the picnic party were Mrs. Vaught and two sons, Mrs. James Odum and son, James Jr., and a neighbor boy, Charles Potts. All were from Carmi.

Young Vaught, suffering a skull fracture and leg injuries, was taken by ambulance from Cave-in-Rock to the Carmi hospital and then to Welborn Memorial hospital in Evansville, where he died last evening.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, the time and place undetermined, and burial will be in Maple Ridge cemetery.

It was stated by authorities that this was the first accident of its kind to occur at Cave-in-Rock park.

Blame Sun On Auto-Truck Crash Near Hamburg

A blinding afternoon sun was blamed for an automobile-truck collision Monday afternoon near Hamburg when two persons were slightly injured and the vehicles received considerable damage.

James Woolard of Galatia reports he was making a turn eastward and that a truck travelling west, driven by Mrs. Rex Pratt, collided with him. He said Mrs. Pratt stated she was blinded by the sun and never saw the Woolard car until after the crash.

Woolard's 1955 Studebaker and the front end of the truck were damaged.

Mrs. Pratt's 9-year-old daughter received head cuts and Woolard suffered a broken finger.

Jo-Jo, Huckstering Parakeet, Fails To Get Tax Refund, But Gets Advice

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jo-Jo, a huckstering parakeet from Peachtree Street, appealed directly to Tax Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews today for a refund—and got some advice probably worth more.

Andrews did not give the talking bird the $20.50 refund he sought, but told him his $15 weekly salary may be illegal—too low under the minimum wage laws.

Jo-Jo gets his weekly stipend for saying "It's O. K. to owe Kay" in an Atlanta, Ga., jewelry store named Kay's.

He earned $615 at his job last year and had $20.50 withheld for federal income taxes. After deducting $25 for travel and $1 for membership in the Columbus, Ohio, Zoological Assn., the prattling parakeet figured his income should not be taxed at all. So he wants the full $20.50 refunded.

Earlier reports that he was claiming an $11 refund were based on erroneous calculations by Jo-Jo's press agent.

Andrews told the bird-brained taxpayer he had flown over too many heads with his refund claim. He instructed him to file the claim with the district director of internal revenue in Atlanta, where he works.

"I'm not opposed to a refund for anyone who is entitled to it," Andrews said, with not a smile, "but there are so many millions of taxpayers I cannot go into the merits of every case."

Jo-Jo is said to have a 60-word vocabulary. Apparently he was

Revenue Office Open on Fridays; Staff Increased

The Internal Revenue Service office in the city hall in Harrisburg will hereafter be open for services to the public on Friday instead of Monday.

The office for the past several months has operated on a curtailed basis as to public service, being open only one day each week, although the staff continues to do field work.

In fact, the staff has been increased with closing of the office in McLeansboro. Louie Conover of Harrisburg, examiner, and J. W. Nicholson of McLeansboro, collection officer, have been attached to the Harrisburg office.

It is known that negotiations have been under way for removal of the office to offices in the Rose building, but formal announcement has not been made.

Offices in the Rose building would be available through vacancies to exist when the Illinois Public Aid Commission offices move to the basement of the Rose building, which is being completely remodeled.

Ford Workers Ratify Contract

DETROIT (AP) — The director of the CIO United Auto Workers' national Ford department said today Ford workers have ratified a new contract agreement containing the first supplementary unemployment benefit plan in the history of the auto industry.

"Technically, the contract now is ratified," Kenneth Bannon said. "Results of the voting to date are unofficial but I expect little change in the official tabulations and the votes already cast give the agreement all the votes it needs."

Meanwhile, American Motors Corp. met with the union in an attempt to work out an agreement which was expected to be similar to the Ford pact and one obtained by the union from General Motors. The AMC contract was expected to have added concessions which would make it acceptable as a model for all smaller auto producers, however.

Talk Answers Peace Offensive By Molotov

French Minister Says NATO Necessary For Collective Defense

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay answered a Russian "peace offensive" today with a pledge that France will remain a member in good standing of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Pinay gave this pledge in a speech prepared for delivery at the 10th anniversary meeting of the United Nations. His appearance was awaited with eager interest by a world wondering how the Big Four planned to cope with Russia's latest diplomatic maneuver.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov launched the Russian peace offensive Wednesday on schedule. In a 48-minute speech, he scolded the West for building up arms, establishing military bases in foreign lands and taking other "belligerent" moves.

He challenged the West to "make the next move" in ending the arms race and urged adoption of Soviet disarmament proposals made in London last month.

Says NATO is Vital

Pinay said immediately after hearing Molotov's speech, "I have heard the same speech at least 10 times. It is always the same thing. We are the bad ones and they are the good ones. We want war and Russia wants peace."

Today, he was more diplomatic. He said in essence that regional security arrangements, such as NATO, were vitally necessary as a defense against aggression in a world that has not disarmed.

"In the present world, as long as a general and controlled disarmament has not become a reality, genuine security can be ensured only in the framework of regional agreements as provided for in the U. N. charter," he said. "To be efficient, such agreements must include, in times of peace, machinery for military cooperation designed to bring about a collective reaction, should an aggression occur."

He said all collective security arrangements—the League of Nations—failed between 1919 and 1939 because military cooperation was lacking.

"I state it frankly and bluntly," he said.

Then turning to NATO, he said: "My country is not prepared to abandon the security ensured to it by the Atlantic organization. My country does not regard it as unfair that common defense arrangements be devised among Allies and their implementation subjected to unanimous decision."

"It deems on the contrary that such arrangements offer the best guarantee for peace."

Then, answering Molotov's charge of "foreign bases," Pinay said: "Within the Atlantic organization."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Herein is my father glorified, that ye bear much fruit; and so shall ye be my disciples.—John 15:8. Fruitfulness is a sign of health and growth, when we cease to be fruitless, decay and death are not far ahead.

Dripping Faucets

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT The signs continue to mount that Americans in high places do altogether too much ill-considered talking about important issues.

This is a delicate matter, since there are always plenty of complaints on the other hand that government does too much in secret. But there ought to be a distinction between dispensing useful information and dropping casual opinions about explosive topics.

The latest offender on this score is Vice President Nixon. He referred to the coming Big Four conference as perhaps the "world's last chance to settle differences peacefully and avoid a catastrophic war."

The clear meaning of that remark is that if the Big Four talks fail then war is almost a certainty. The record does not show a single top Western Soviet official likely to attend the conference who supports such a view.

The expressed attitude of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles is that an unsatisfactory meeting would not materially damage the world situation. They have tried in fact to minimize the importance of big power talks, including the proposed "meeting at the summit."

Nixon's words suggest that such discussions are almost a matter of life and death for free men. He embarrassed both the President and the State Department by his carelessly offered comment.

Admittedly, our public officials and lawmakers are under great and constant pressure. If they are willing to talk at all, they are bombarded with bids from TV panels, discussion groups, radio forums, luncheon clubs and what not. Reporters press in upon them every time they stick a foot out of the office.

This, of course, is the great, energetic American way. You can't stop people from going after public figures. You wouldn't want to. But the figures themselves have got to keep their heads. If they're going to be available—and they should be—they've got to develop a keen sense about what to say and how to say it.

Too many do not seem to have it. They mutter something casually, and then hours or days later are greatly surprised to learn they have kicked off an uproar. Thereafter they are busy explaining that they really said something else, or were misinterpreted, or quoted "out of context."

The whole routine can get pretty silly. The apologies and cover-ups and embarrassments that usually follow one of these performances can make high officials look like confused schoolboys.

Think before you speak is a rather true little saying. But it's still good advice, and it ought to have a brand-new ring in the ears of quite a few Washington officials.

Will He Hunt the B'ar?

Not long ago Senator Kefauver of Tennessee said flatly he wasn't a candidate for the 1956 Democratic presidential nomination. Now he's not so sure.

"I may change my mind," he says today. "Anyone who says he wouldn't like to be president of this great country is just kidding."

We don't know just what factors are churning around in the senator's mind. Maybe he's waiting to see just how long the Davy Crockett boom will last.

Kefauver did pretty well in a con skin cap in 1952. But this particular kind of fur headpiece has taken on a whole new meaning since the box-top, sandpile set got interested in Davy.

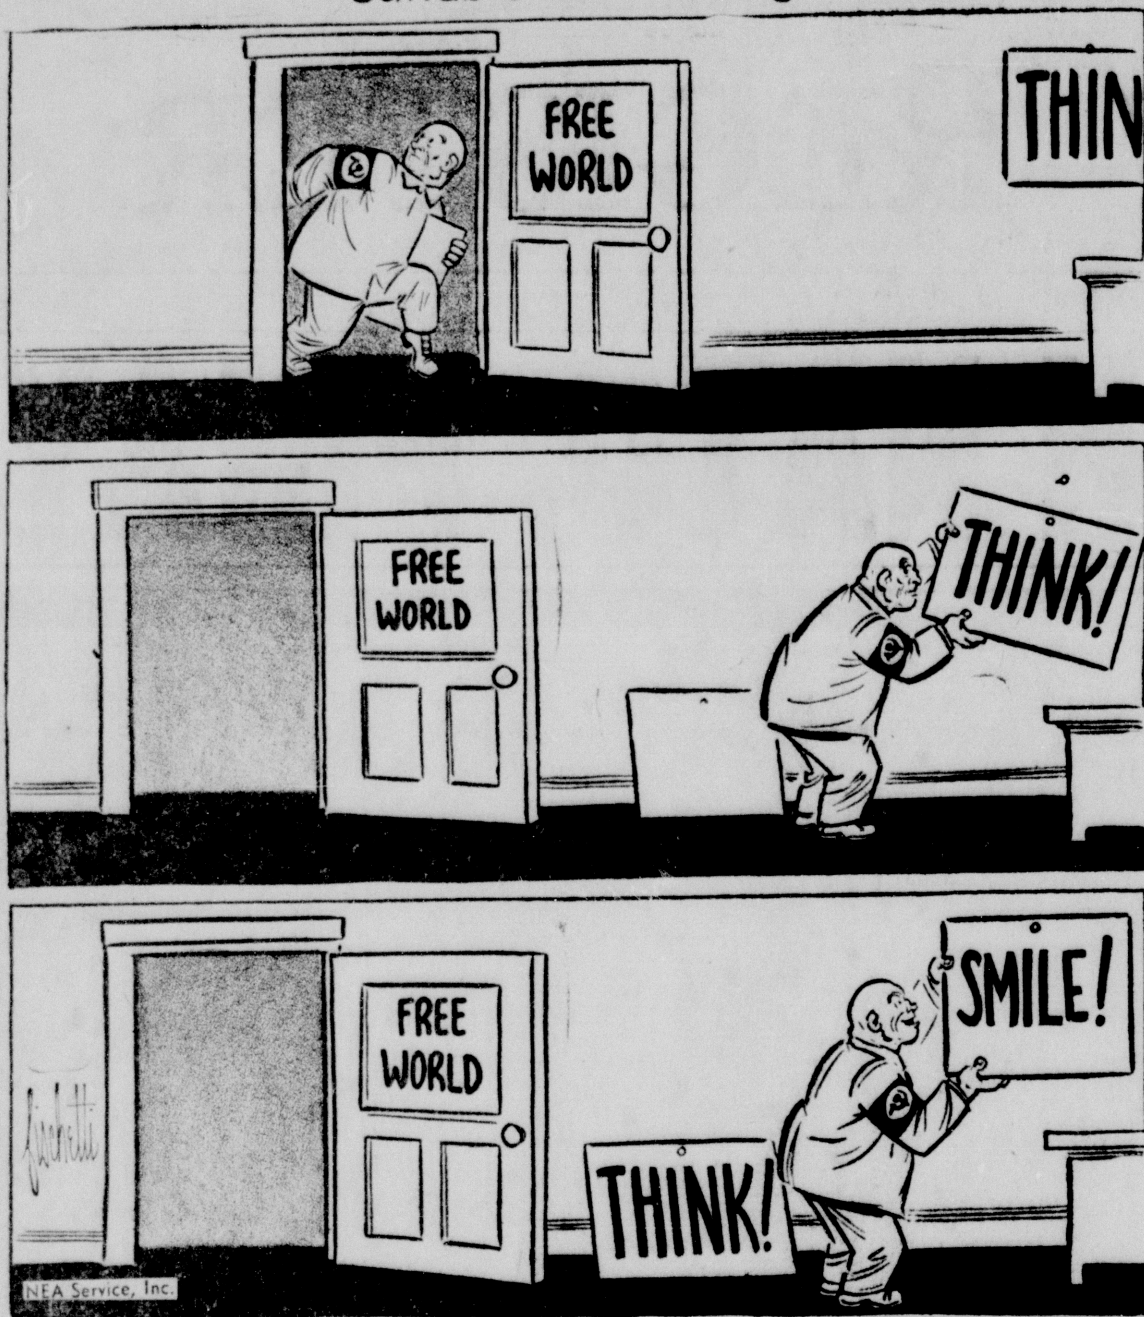

Since TV came into its own, the kids and their likes and dislikes seem to throw more weight than ever in the family circle. That con cap might be a gold mine of votes.

You can't easily make the White House on anybody else's coat-tails. Possibly you can ride in on the tail of a raccoon.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Senator Bush, With Secret Expense Fund, Opposed Salary Increase For Other Senators; Bush Doesn't Think Anyone Should Run For Senate Unless He Has Money; His GOP Colleague From Connecticut Argues With Him.

WASHINGTON. — The record on Sen. Prescott Bush, Connecticut Republican, is a little worse than when I first reported it last week. Senator Bush has not only a secret expense fund raised by wealthy friends on Wall Street, and is one of the wealthiest men in the Senate, but on top of this made two of the longest speeches against raising congressmen's salaries when that question was up for debate.

Senator Bush made it clear during this debate that he thought membership in the Senate should be reserved for those who could afford it. But he did not reveal to any of his colleagues that wealthy friends were raising over $25,000 for his TV, radio and publicity.

His own Republican colleague from Connecticut, William Purtell, argued with him at some length on the Senate floor, but the more Senator Bush argued back, the more it became clear that he thought the Senate should be, in effect, an exclusive millionaire's club.

SENATOR PURTELL ARGUES This so surprised his friend and GOP colleague from Connecticut that Purtell asked:

"Would the senator feel that one of the prerequisites for membership in the Congress should be either inherited or acquired wealth before becoming a member of Congress?"

"Will the senator repeat the question?" parried Bush of Connecticut.

"I think I had better repeat the question," replied Purtell of Connecticut. "Is it the senator's opinion that one of the tests for ability to serve in the House or the Senate should be either inherited or acquired wealth?"

"No," replied Bush, "I would not say there should be any such test."

"My experience has been," pressed his GOP colleague from Connecticut, obviously not satisfied with the answer, "that many members of the House of Representatives with growing families and children who have to be sent to school find it impossible to make ends meet."

"Does the senator agree with me that such persons do have difficulty in making both ends meet in view of the fact that they have to try to meet the demands of their constituents by going back and forth between their districts and Washington?"

"May I further ask the senator," pressed Purtell, "whether he thinks such persons should deny to their loved ones some of the necessities in the way of education and otherwise that more wealthy men and women can give to their families and children?"

SENATOR BUSH ON FUND Senator Bush at no time intimated that friends were raising a secret fund to help him go back and forth to meet with his constituents. But, in replying to Purtell, he did give away his belief that people without money should not serve in Congress.

"I would remind the senator," he told his colleague from Connecticut, "that such persons are not impelled by any requirements except their own preference to serve in the House. There is no compulsion for such persons to remain members of the House if they do not think the reward is satisfactory and they find themselves in a position of hardship." "Does the senator believe," asked Purtell, pressing the point further, "that the salaries should be so low as to preclude from an opportunity to serve in Congress many persons who have growing families and who would like to serve in legislative bodies but cannot because the salaries do not permit them to do justice to their families?"

"I simply say to the senator," replied Bush, "that I do not think the salaries should be fixed at such a rate that anybody who wanted to do so should make money from service in Congress."

Senator Bush is a former Wall Street banker who has raised all sorts of money for the Republican party, and his GOP colleague from Connecticut knew it. Whether he knew Bush had a secret expense fund, is not known. But Purtell knew that Bush, before his election to Congress, had been a director of Columbia Broadcasting, the Vanadium Corp. of America, Prudential Insurance, the U. S. Guarantee Co., the Simmons Corp., Rockbestos Products, and chairman of Pennsylvania Water and Power. Few other sitting senators have had so many ties with big business when they ran for office.

So Senator Purtell persisted.

FEW FARMERS IN SENATE

"In other words," he remarked, "the senator feels that if one with a growing family and having no inherited or acquired wealth finds himself unable to meet the demands of his family, he ought not to run for office?"

Senator Bush was too wise politically to admit this. He denied it. But he made his position quite clear during the debate that he believed only the wealthy should hold office.

Many members hold connections with business and professional organizations," he said. "While all members do not do so, most of them have been able to retain their interests in automobile agencies, law firms, radio and TV and the newspaper business."

"I think it's good to have in Congress men of affairs who know what it is to operate a business or who practice law."

Finally Senator Langer of North Dakota interrupted to ask:

"Can the senator from Connecticut name a member of this body who is a farmer?"

Bush named Senator Williams, Republican of Delaware.

"I understand he raises a million and a half chickens a year," countered Langer. "I am referring to a member of this body who gets up at 4 a. m. and goes into the barn and milks half a dozen cows."

Bush replied that Senator Byrd, the millionaire apple grower from Virginia, was a farmer, and Senator Morse of Oregon had offered any senator a job as a hand on his small Maryland 25-acre farm. But no senator really qualified as a dirt farmer. One man, McNamara of Michigan, qualified as a genuine member of labor, but in general it appeared the Senate was composed of lawyers and businessmen, none of whom knew that their Connecticut colleague, who opposed a salary increase, was raising a secret fund of his own.

AEC Says Granite Rock May Become Source of Fuel

MILWAUKEE U.—A member of the Atomic Energy Commission said Tuesday night that ordinary granite rock may someday be worth 50 times its weight in coal as an energy producer.

Willard F. Libby said scientists already are working on the problem, although "it is too early to say whether this potential blessing to mankind can be realized."

Libby said it may "eventually prove to be possible to consider uranium 238 fissionable and therefore a source of power." If this should prove true, he said, "the world has available bountiful quantities of fuel, for ordinary granite rock, which has four parts per million of uranium in it, would then become the equivalent of 12 times its own weight in coal as an energy source."

The question, he said, is whether the atoms of plutonium produced in the process would exceed the number of uranium 235 atoms needed to operate the nuclear reactor.

He said the element thorium also is potentially fissionable as a source of uranium 233, but again it is still to be determined whether the process would produce a net gain of uranium 233 atoms burned to keep the nuclear piles running. Granite has 13 parts per million of thorium in it.

Success in the uranium experiments, he said, would make granite the equivalent of 12 times its weight in coal, while success with thorium would make the common rock worth 50 times its weight in coal.

Libby spoke to a conference of business and industrial leaders at Marquette University.

Americans Advised To Try Siestas

CINCINNATI — Viva la siesta!

That brief afternoon nap is not the refuge of the lazy, but the premium a wise man pays for a long life, say two University of Cincinnati professors.

Dr. Clarence A. Mills, expert on the effect of climate and weather on man, and Dr. Robert Kirsner, associate professor of romance languages and literature, both laud the siesta.

Ten minutes of sleep will do it. A short nap is better, says Dr. Mills, than a long slumber, which makes one groggy.

America, Dr. Mills continues, has the highest heart disease rate in the world. This is because Americans rush around all day without getting the proper rest. In many cases sudden and extreme temperature changes often stimulate people to great spurts of productive energy. These people keep right on going without sufficient rest and collapse eventually from exhaustion.

The siesta is the answer. "When knocks and creaks begin to appear in our bodies, it means that we need longer and more frequent periods for repair forces to do their work," warns Dr. Mills. "Proper hours of sleep at night are essential, but a short afternoon nap is equally important."

Chemists usually advance the idea that there are but four fundamental odors — fragrant, burnt, acid, and caprylic.

House Passes Bill
For Revolving Fund
To Build Schools

SPRINGFIELD (UP)—The Illinois House today passed a bill, the Illinois School Problems Commission's two bills to create a $7,500,000 revolving fund to build and rent schools to districts with overcrowded buildings and exhausted bonding power.

Rep. Charles W. Clabaugh (R-Champaign), head of the commission, said the bills, which now go to the Senate, would give help only to those districts which are unable to borrow through further bond issues for building purposes. These districts have reached their constitutional 5 per cent debt limit.

Clabaugh said these districts would have to certify to the superintendent of public instruction, who would administer the building fund, that school population was overcrowding existing buildings and there was no local remedy. He said the state would hold the title to the buildings and land until the rents paid by the districts paid for the projects.

He said the school districts would have to levy a special tax to pay the rentals.

British Explorers
Find Tracks of Himalayan 'Whatzis'

LONDON (UP)—The British Air Ministry—which consistently pooh-poohs reports of flying saucers—today vouched for the fact that there is, or at least may be, an "abominable snowman" in the high Himalayas.

The ministry announced, quite matter-of-factly, that a team of British airman-explorers in the Himalayas have found tracks of a two-legged, five-toed creature whose foot is 12 inches long and whose footprints were 11 inches deep in snow in which a man's footprint made only a one-inch depression.

Discovery of the trail of this high-altitude "whatzis" gave a measure of official blessing to the reports, frequently denied, that some huge, apelike monster roams the Himalayan heights.

Name 12 American Farm Experts to Make Agricultural Tour of Russia

DES MOINES — The 12 American farm experts who will make an agricultural tour of Russia this summer are ready and willing to pick up some pointers from the Communists.

Some of the 12 men said today that the exchange trips of American and Russian farm specialists may smack a little of propaganda.

But they are eager to examine Russian farming methods with an eye to improving their own crops. And they also hoped that "farmer to farmer" talks might contribute a little towards easing East-West tensions.

The names of 10 of the 12 Americans who will make the July 15 to Aug. 15 jaunt were announced in Washington late Wednesday. The names of the other two were withheld for the time being because the Agriculture Department had not yet received official word of their acceptance.

Started With an Editorial

The Americans' trip to Russia will coincide with a month-long tour of U. S. farmlands by a Soviet delegation.

The idea to let Russians have a look at American farming methods while U. S. farmers tour Russia stemmed from an editorial in the Des Moines Register and Tribune. Appropriately, the writer of the editorial was 1 of the 12 Americans named to make the trip to Russia.

Editorial page editor Lauren K. Soth said he threw out the idea after Soviet leaders had publicly bemoaned Russia's agricultural troubles.

Reveal Red Air Chief Demoted Over Loss of MIG

SEOUL, Korea — Red North Korea's air force chief lost his job because one of his pilots flew a Russian-built MIG here for a $100,000 reward in 1953, it was learned today.

The Communists replaced him with a Russian citizen.

The United Press learned from highly reliable South Korean air force sources that these facts were revealed by Capt. Lee Woon Young, one of two North Korean pilots who flew to freedom here Tuesday in their Russian-built YAK-18.

The sources said Capt. Lee disclosed that Wang Yun, former head of the North Korean air force, was demoted to major general and vice commander after Noh Keun Suk piloted his MIG to Kimpo Air Base Sept. 21, 1953.

Noh collected $100,000 from the United States as the reward Gen. Mark Clark offered to any Red pilot who delivered a MIG to the United Nations command. The United States wanted the Russian plane for study.

Capt. Lee revealed that the new head of the North Korean air force is Lt. Gen. Han Il Moo, former high-ranking officer in the North Korean navy and a citizen of Soviet Russia.

Questioning of the two defectors revealed that Lee's companion, Lt. Lee Enn Sung, pulled a pistol on the captain in the cockpit of the plane and told him to turn back to North Korea.

ROK air force sources said the captain convinced his fellow pilot that he was not flying back to Communist North Korea and that the sleek two-seat plane would crash if he was shot.

"If you kill me, you'll die too," the captain was quoted as telling the lieutenant.

The captain said it was not until they were over Inchon that the lieutenant changed his mind and decided to defect.

Dishwasher, 65, Rides Runaway Steer in Chicago

CHICAGO (UP) — A 65-year-old dishwasher tried to ride a runaway steer through Chicago's streets Wednesday night.

The dishwasher, Arthur Murphy, came to grief, and so did the steer. The metropolitan roundup began when some children apparently unlocked a corral in the Chicago stock yards and freed seven steers.

Murphy proved equal to the crisis leaping aboard one of the charging steers with a true Hopalong Cassidy flair.

But staying on was a little harder. Murphy stuck gamely, even though his shoes were shaken off, but finally had to take a header into Halsted Street.

The steer romped on to crash into a car occupied by a surprised visitor from Flint, Mich., Kenneth Poling. Poling's car was disabled and the steer broke its leg, forcing policemen to destroy it.

Stock yards police and adventurous citizens chased the other steers through streets, alleys and back yards. They finally corralled the lot of them.

Marshall Browning Hospital Employees Plan July 4 Benefit

Employees of the Marshall Browning hospital in Du Quoin, who are raising $5,000 to pipe in oxygen to every bed in the hospital, are planning a July 4 celebration to help raise funds for the project.

A stage show at 8 p. m. of southern Illinois talent with a display of fireworks at the conclusion of the show will climax the event. Picnics will be held at the fairgrounds during the day and in the early evening an auction of items from celebrities will be held.

Senators Sound Death Knell to FEPC Measure

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois Senate today sounded the final death knell for a fair employment practices bill, the fourth straight session in which that body has beaten efforts to outlaw discrimination in hiring.

The Senate voted against taking the bill from the table, where it was put by a committee defeat, by a 19-8 vote.

Sen. Fred J. Smith, Chicago Democratic Negro, said the action to outlaw employment discrimination followed 75 years in which the problem had not been solved "despite all the educational opportunities available."

He said the bill did not try to "stop prejudice . . . but it does seek to transfer prejudice into a deed . . . to give my people a chance to improve their work opportunities."

Sen. Robert McClory (R-Waukegan), chairman of the Senate Industrial Affairs committee which tabled the bill, said "this is not the type of legislation needed to solve the problem." He said the penalties imposed by the proposed law would give employers the idea they were being forced into doing something they should do voluntarily.

Senate Approves Gov't Pay Compromise

WASHINGTON — The Senate today approved by voice a compromise bill to give a 7.5 per cent pay raise to some 1,100,000 white collar civil service federal workers.

The measure now goes to the House, where final congressional approval is expected sometime this week.

Cost of Living Unchanged, Gov't Reports

WASHINGTON — The cost of living remained unchanged last month while the average factory worker's take-home pay hit a new high.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that the consumer price index in May stood at 114.2 per cent of average 1947-49 prices. The index—the yardstick for measuring living costs — has varied by only 1 of 1 per cent in the past six months.

The May average of factory earnings after taxes was up by more than $1 a week from April, the sharpest April-to-May increase since 1941. Take-home pay of average workers with families rose to $70.12; of single workers to $62.83. The increases resulted mainly from a rise in the factory work week, BLS said.

In consumer prices, food, housing, reading and recreation costs of the average city dweller declined. Prices for transportation, clothing, medical and personal care rose. The changes offset each other.

Vote 367-0 in House Against Colonialism

By United Press
The House voted 367-0 today against colonialism and Communist imperialism.

The vote was on a resolution sponsored by House Democratic Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts. The resolution now goes to the Senate.

It says the United States should "support other peoples in their efforts to achieve self-government or independence under circumstances which will enable them to assume an equal station among the free nations of the world."

Chairman James P. Richards (D-S.C.) of the House Foreign Affairs committee said "the resolution is timely and urgent and will assure the world that the United States is once and for all against colonialism in any form."

Other congressional news:
Housing: The House Banking committee formally approved President Eisenhower's public housing program, 19-3, after adding 20,000 additional low-rent units for old people.

Ceiling: House Ways & Means committee sources said the administration has decided to ask Congress for a one-year extension of the present temporary 281 billion dollar ceiling on the national debt.

Security: The House Judiciary committee approved a bill to authorize appointment of a bipartisan 12-member commission to investigate the administration's security program.

Penalties: The House Judiciary committee approved a bill to provide heavier penalties for seditious conspiracy and advocating overthrow of the government. It would increase the penalty for seditious conspiracy from $5,000 fine and six years in prison to $20,000 fine and 20 years.

Information: Chairman William L. Dawson (D-Ill.) said a House government operations subcommittee is investigating whether the government is withholding "pertinent and timely information" from newspapers. Dawson said he has heard charges that government agencies have withheld such information "from those entitled to receive it."

Cleveland maintains a series of gardens in Rockefeller Park, each honoring a different national culture. The project was begun in 1926. Sixteen of the Cultural Gardens are finished.

Not a Visitor
Although James Smithson, founder of the Smithsonian Institution, was English and never visited the United States, he left his fortune in trust to this country to found an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men.

Karl Marx, "father of Russian communism," was a German who spent much of his life in Great Britain and never visited Russia.

Illinois House Rejects Tax Bill by Powell

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House, which Wednesday sent most of the Stratton-Daley city-state tax plan to the governor's desk, today refused to pass the rival Powell tax plan.

Rep. Paul Powell (D-Vienna) called his bill for passage despite the certain signature of the other program by Gov. William G. Stratton and it failed by a 68-25 vote, seven short needed for passage.

Questioning the need for voting on the Powell measure at all, Majority Leader John W. Lewis Jr. (R-Marshall), said "as soon as the bills we passed yesterday reach the governor's desk they will be the law of the State of Illinois."

The decision of this body in regard to a revenue program was made yesterday.

"If that argument had been made yesterday this bill would be the only tax bill before this General Assembly," Rep. Robert Roman (D-Chicago) shot back at Lewis, indicating there was a prior understanding the House would consider both tax plans.

The Powell tax plan was to increase the state tax a full cent, earmark a half-cent each for cities and schools and require cities to abate property taxes by a share of their new sales tax revenue.

The Stratton-Daley revenue program will net the state some 20 million dollars in added revenue for the next two years and open up a new revenue source—a local sales tax—to cities.

The revenue program, passed in the House Wednesday by a tight combination of Republicans and Chicago Democrats, was the second major item to clear the General Assembly. The first was legislative reapportionment, passed last week.

Passage of the revenue program raised the hopes of administration leaders for adjournment before the June 30 deadline and set the stage for action today on two remaining major issues. These are the proposed revisions of the revenue and judicial articles to the constitution.

Genius, 20, Found Innocent of Forgery, Arson

BELOIT, Wis. — Stephen Dykstra Posey, 20-year-old genius reported to have a higher IQ than the late Albert Einstein, was found innocent of arson and forgery charges today but was ordered committed to a mental institution.

Posey was charged with arson for a $250,000 fire which destroyed the Beloit College chapel in 1953. He also faced a charge involving the forgery of a fellow student's check when he was a freshman at the college.

Municipal Judge Arthur Luebke found Posey innocent by reason of insanity. The judge ordered him committed to the Central State hospital until such time as the court finds him sane and mentally responsible.

Posey is the grandson of a former president of the University of Wisconsin, and his father is a Northwestern University professor.

Cost of Living Unchanged, Gov't Reports

WASHINGTON — The cost of living remained unchanged last month while the average factory worker's take-home pay hit a new high.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that the consumer price index in May stood at 114.2 per cent of average 1947-49 prices. The index—the yardstick for measuring living costs — has varied by only 1 of 1 per cent in the past six months.

The May average of factory earnings after taxes was up by more than $1 a week from April, the sharpest April-to-May increase since 1941. Take-home pay of average workers with families rose to $70.12; of single workers to $62.83. The increases resulted mainly from a rise in the factory work week, BLS said.

In consumer prices, food, housing, reading and recreation costs of the average city dweller declined. Prices for transportation, clothing, medical and personal care rose. The changes offset each other.

Illinois House Rejects Tax Bill by Powell

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois House, which Wednesday sent most of the Stratton-Daley city-state tax plan to the governor's desk, today refused to pass the rival Powell tax plan.

Rep. Paul Powell (D-Vienna) called his bill for passage despite the certain signature of the other program by Gov. William G. Stratton and it failed by a 68-25 vote, seven short needed for passage.

Questioning the need for voting on the Powell measure at all, Majority Leader John W. Lewis Jr. (R-Marshall), said "as soon as the bills we passed yesterday reach the governor's desk they will be the law of the State of Illinois."

The decision of this body in regard to a revenue program was made yesterday.

"If that argument had been made yesterday this bill would be the only tax bill before this General Assembly," Rep. Robert Roman (D-Chicago) shot back at Lewis, indicating there was a prior understanding the House would consider both tax plans.

The Powell tax plan was to increase the state tax a full cent, earmark a half-cent each for cities and schools and require cities to abate property taxes by a share of their new sales tax revenue.

The Stratton-Daley revenue program will net the state some 20 million dollars in added revenue for the next two years and open up a new revenue source—a local sales tax—to cities.

The revenue program, passed in the House Wednesday by a tight combination of Republicans and Chicago Democrats, was the second major item to clear the General Assembly. The first was legislative reapportionment, passed last week.

Passage of the revenue program raised the hopes of administration leaders for adjournment before the June 30 deadline and set the stage for action today on two remaining major issues. These are the proposed revisions of the revenue and judicial articles to the constitution.

69 Tee Off in Women's Western Golf Tourney

MADISON, Wis. — A field of 69 women golfers, including all but one of the nation's top 72 professionals, teed off today for the 26th annual Women's Western Open golf championship, a $5,000 event slated for medal play for the first time in its history.

The standout favorites were Louise Suggs, Atlanta, Ga., the leading money winner in women's golf this year, and Patty Berg, Chicago, ranked second in earnings to Miss Suggs.

Each has won the tournament four times in the past, sharing that honor with Mrs. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, another pro, who will miss this event due to a back injury.

Most of the contestants were willing today to settle for a score of par, 292, or better for the 72 hole chase which will end Sunday. But one challenger, Beverly Hanson, Fargo, N. D., said she believed the winner would knock perhaps six strokes off regulation figures to finish with a 286 or possibly a 288.

Miss Berg and other well rated contestants, such as Jackie Pung and amateur Jackie Yates, both from Honolulu, Betty MacKinnon, Savannah, Ga., Peggy Kirk Bell, St. Clair, Mich., and Carol Bowman, Oakland, Calif., anticipated a 292 would be good enough to win.

The full field of 20 professionals and 49 amateurs will play 18 holes today and Friday with the low 32 scorers after 36 holes continuing in championship play for the next two days, 18 holes on both Saturday and Sunday.

Archie Moore Belts Out Olson in Third; Predicts KO of Marciano

NEW YORK — Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore, elated at Wednesday night's quick defense of his crown, said today, "I believe I'll knock out Rocky Marciano when we fight in September."

The 38-year-old Negro from San Diego, Calif., who belted out middleweight champion Carl (Bobo) Olson in the third round at the Polo Grounds Wednesday night, added, "I know it sounds as if I'm talking big. But I've got a lot of dynamite left. I didn't use last night."

Charley Johnston, Moore's manager, said he had been invited to confer today with promoter Jim Norris about a probable September 22 fight at Yankee Stadium.

At Brockton, Mass., heavyweight champion Marciano said, "I'll be glad to defend against Moore any time. Arrangements for the fight are up to my manager, Al Weill." Rocky saw the Moore-Olson fight on television and said he was impressed with ancient Archie's prowess.

Durocher Refuses To Discuss Transfer Rumors

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Manager Leo Durocher of the New York Giants refused to discuss today a report that he is about to leave the Giants as manager and switch to the St. Louis Cardinals.

"That report now is an old story," Durocher said. "I won't even discuss it. I have no comment to make on it."

The Giants' manager made the statements just before boarding a plane here today with 20 of his players and other members of the Giants' party bound for Minneapolis for an exhibition game tonight.

Baseball writers touring with the Giants also sided in with Durocher. They pointed out there isn't any likelihood of Durocher being succeeded by Bill Rigney, manager of the New York team's Minneapolis farm team, even though President Horace Stoneham of the Giants will be present.

One writer said "Most of us are taking a train to St. Louis tonight and skipping the trip to Minneapolis on the club's assurance that nothing except an exhibition game will take place there."

The Giants open a four-game series in St. Louis Friday night.

Dodgers, Assured of July 4 Lead, Defeat Cubs, 3-2; Five Teams in AL Race

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer
Shoot off a premature firecracker today for those booming Brooklyn Dodgers because they now are certain to be in first place on the Fourth of July, the date which means an eventual pennant according to tradition.

Since 1900 teams in first place on July 4 in the National League have gone on to win the pennant 35 times and lost out 20 times. But could there be one bad omen? The last time a July 4 leader failed to win the pennant was in 1951 when the Dodgers blew the flag to the Giants in the playoffs.

The Dodgers assured themselves of the lead on the holiday Wednesday when they again defeated the second-place Cubs, 3-2, to go 13 games in front. The Cubs have 12 games to play before July 4 and if they won all and Brooklyn lost all of the 11 it has before that date, the Dodgers still would be in front.

Five-Team Fight
Any of five American League teams conceivably could lead the pack by July 4 but the Yankees, as of now, still were in command by two games after another victory, 6-1, over the Athletics. If the Yankees hold their margin they will be an even better bet to win the flag on past performance because in the junior circuit the July 4 leader has gone on to finish on top 38 times as against 17 failures.

Whitey Ford scattered nine hits for his eighth victory and Mickey Mantle hit another long homer in the Yankee triumph, a runner-up Chicago and third place Cleveland kept pace with shutout wins.

Chicago topped Washington 3-0 on a four-hitter by Dick Donovan. It was Donovan's ninth win, pretty good for a pitcher who never had a major league triumph in four previous years in the majors.

Cleveland defeated Baltimore 5-0 on Early Wynn's six-hitter in which he also accounted for two tallies with a double. It was his ninth victory and third shutout and Baltimore's sixth shutout in nine games.

The Red Sox moved to within a game of fourth place with a 12-7 triumph over Detroit in which Ted Williams smacked three doubles and Norm Zaichin hit a three-run homer. Jim Piersall and Sammy White also hit Boston homers and Al Kaline hit two for Detroit while Ray Boone got one.

Giants End Losing Streak
The Dodgers picked up an unearned run in the eighth to defeat the Cubs and hand Hal Jeffcoat his second straight defeat as a reliever after he had won six in a row. It was Jeffcoat's throwing error that set up Brooklyn's winning run. Rube Walker, subbing for Roy Campanella, homered for Brooklyn.

The Giants finally ended their six-game losing streak behind "stopper" Sal Maglie, beating Cincinnati, 4-3, on the margin of homers by Hank Thompson and Bobby Hoffman in the ninth. It was Maglie's eighth straight triumph.

Warren Spahn pitched a six-hit shutout for his fifth victory to give Milwaukee a 6-0 decision over pursues the glitter and passes up the gold

The GROPE is an advertiser who'd rather be flashy than right.

He walks when others are riding, and shaves with a goldplated axe.

Prefers to reach for pie in the sky rather than use the one medium that's proven productive so long for so many.

Fortunately, the GROPE is a rare creature.

Wise advertisers know that the newspaper is basic — no matter what the separate virtues of other media may be.

They know that almost every person in every community across America reads a newspaper sometime during each day.

They also know that people have a strong allegiance to their newspapers, believe in newspapers, and shop from newspapers.

Thus, whatever advertising schedule they build, they make newspapers their solid foundation.

No wonder advertisers placed more money in newspapers last year than they did in television, radio, magazines and outdoor — combined!

All business is local... and so are all newspapers!

Super Sabrejet Crashes in Japan

TOKYO (AP)—An F100 Super Sabrejet, the Air Force's newest operational jet fighter, crashed today a short time after takeoff, Far East Air Forces announced.

The plane, one of three of its type in the Far East, crashed near Atsugi, which is southwest of Tokyo. The pilot parachuted to safety but was hospitalized with minor injuries. The Air Force said the cause of the accident was being investigated.

An Air Force spokesman denied a Kyodo news agency report that the F100 exploded after it touched the wing of another jet with which it was flying in formation.

France Will Remain In NATO: Pinay

tion, I know of no foreign military bases. I only know that common means are made available to serve a common peaceful ideal."

Pinay pointed out that all such security treaties which France has signed are defensive in character. Turning to the question of Germany, Pinay unequivocally came out for uniting West and East Germany.

"German unity must be re-established with equal security of all," he said.

"We must rule out the misconception of a neutral Germany which might some day become an overarmed Germany, and also rule out the senselessness of a neutralized Germany, for a great people cannot indefinitely be subjected to a trusteeship."

Dulles Talks Friday

"We must, in my opinion give a free Germany the choice of her being associated to a system of reciprocal limitation and control of armaments."

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, asked to comment on Molotov's speech, said he would "save my reactions for my own talk on Friday, he added."

"Mr. Molotov made those same disarmament conference suggestions before in Berlin a year ago. We were not in favor of them then, and I see no reason now why we should change our minds."

Molotov was followed to the stand by the delegate from Iran and then by the delegate from Cuba, Dr. Emilio Nunez Portuondo. Then the fireworks began.

In a fiery blast at Russia—the only one so far delivered by the West—Nunez accused Russia of occupying and enslaving Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia, and of "subjecting to its rule on many states."

At that point, U. N. President Eelco Van Kleffens of The Netherlands banged his gavel. He reminded Nunez that criticism of a member states was forbidden at this meeting.

Romulo left his seat and strode to the front of the opera house. He asked Van Kleffens why he let Molotov talk without interruption, but not Nunez.

"Mr. Molotov did not direct his remarks against any individual government," Van Kleffens replied.

After a further exchange of such remarks, Romulo returned to his seat and Nunez resumed his talk, omitting a long passage about Russian conquests. When Nunez left his platform, he was warmly congratulated by delegates sitting along the aisle, including Dulles.

MOLOTOV WARNED BY UNIDENTIFIED MAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Police armed with rifles patrolled rooftops near the opera house today after an unidentified man warned Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov would be shot.

The information was received Wednesday in a telephone call. The man refused to give his name. He said only that he had been talking with another man who said he would shoot the Russian.

40,000 Illinois Farmers Eligible For Wheat Vote

By United Press

About 40,000 Illinois farmers are eligible to vote Saturday in the national referendum on wheat quotas.

If two-thirds of the nation's farmers okay quotas, they may plant 55 million acres of wheat and get price support loans at 76 per cent of parity.

But if they reject quotas, price supports will be 50 per cent of parity.

ity for growers who stay within their allotted acreage.

Illinois was one of the few states which turned down quotas last year, by a vote of 7,414 to 5,434. Heavy votes for quotas elsewhere swung the tide in their favor.

The Illinois Agricultural Assn., the state's biggest farm organization, is not taking a "yes" or "no" stand on quotas, but is simply urging eligible farmers to be sure to vote.

The IAA favors giving farmers a third choice — increasing acreage from 55 to 62 million acres and providing price supports at 65 per cent of parity.

Dairymen Urge Own Program To Boost Sales

WASHINGTON — Dairymen and butter makers asked Congress today to let them finance their own program of boosting sales of milk and milk products, as a substitute for price supports.

Otie M. Reed, Washington representative of the joint committee of the National Creameries Assn. and the American Butter Institute, presented the plan to the Senate Agriculture committee.

Reed said the dairymen should be permitted to sell their way out of trouble.

He proposed a 40-million-dollar a year sales promotion and research campaign, financed by the farmers, who would pay a penny a pound on butterfat or 4 cents a hundredweight on milk. Reed said private agencies would carry out the actual promotion, merchandising and research.

Congressional farm experts said congressional sanction would be necessary for the plan to authorize some sort of a check-off system for collecting the promotion fees from farmers. They said similar programs for other commodities— notably wool—are handled in that way under a congressional mandate.

U. S. Debt Soars Close to War II High in Spite of Republican Budget Efforts

By LYLE C. WILSON

United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON — In the 10th year of what passes for peace, the United States public debt has soared close to the high reached with World War II spending.

War spending boosted the national debt to a peak of $277,012,000,000 on Feb. 28, 1946. That was 10 months after the shooting actually stopped. It took that long to reverse the spending trend.

Treasury figures for the first 11 months of the fiscal year 1955 show the public debt as of May 31 to have been $277,009,000,000. This figure will have been considerably reduced when the fiscal year ends next week on June 30.

Even so, the budget successfully has resisted Republican efforts to bring it into balance and is likely to do so throughout President Eisenhower's current term of office. When the books close next week the Treasury will be in the red for the 12-month fiscal period by about $4,504,000,000. The deficit estimate for the next fiscal year is $2,408,000,000.

Ike's Average Deficit
It is likely that Mr. Eisenhower will end his present White House term with an average deficit of about 3 billion dollars or more for each of the four years. Republicans did considerably better than that when they controlled Congress, but were shut out of the White House. That was during the 80th Congress which President Truman called the worst ever.

The Republican-controlled House and Senate in the 80th clipped spending from 60 billion dollars to 39 billion dollars and then to 33 billion dollars to achieve budget surpluses in fiscal years 1947 and 1948.

Mr. Truman led Democrats to a surprise triumph in the 1948 elections and spending in that fiscal year jumped nearly 7 billion dollars over the previous year's figure. The hot war in Korea and the cold war world-wide have required a high rate of defense spending, although not as high as the Democrats believe to be necessary. Mr. Eisenhower, however, has turned the spending level down. The figure will be around 63 billion dollars for the fiscal year now ending against nearly 68 billion dollars last year.

Not Much Promise
There is not much promise of tax relief in such Treasury figures. But 1956 is an election year. It is not unlikely that Congress will pass and Mr. Eisenhower sign a 1956 tax cut.

There won't be any 1956 tax cuts comparable to the happy days after World War I. Andrew W. Mellon was being hailed then as the greatest Treasury secretary since Hamilton. Income taxes steadily were trimmed. A man making approximately $100 a week could settle his income tax for about $15. And at the same time Mellon was paying off three-fifths of the national debt in a bit over eight years. The debt had grown to $26,348,000,000 in World War I and Mellon regarded that as far too great. It had been a mere $1,023,000,000 the week before the United States started out to hang the Kaiser in April, 1917.

Merkle Play No Surprise to Haney

PITTSBURGH — (NEA) — When Gene Freese pulled the "Merkle Play" to rob the Pirates of a victory over the Phillies, it left Fred Haney talking to himself.

Haney expects mistakes with his young Bucs, but what killed him on this play was the fact that he called time immediately before to warn his runners about it happening.

"You both have to run it out," he told Freese and batter Ramon Mejias.

It was the last of the 10th. Tom Saffell was on third base and Freese on first, where Manager Haney was coaching. Mejias singled. Freese went toward second base—watched Haney scream to Mejias to run the hit out. Mejias, who was admiring his hit, finally went to first base.

Freese didn't go to second base—and the game went out the window.

THE STORY: Lucy Hamilton, frightened by threats, delays telling Private Detective Mike Shayne, that she had harbored a fugitive in her apartment. Mike already had forcibly ejected a policeman who tried to force his way in to make an illegal search. Now Mike has learned that the fugitive, a former friend of Lucy's named Jack Bristow, is wanted for murder.

VI

Shayne shook his head in sudden irritation while three deep creases formed between his eyes. He muttered, "I think I'd like to hear a lot more about this Jack Bristow."

He looked at his watch as he settled himself, said quietly, "I admit you've got me in a spot, and that I pulled Will Gentry into it with me when I chased the sergeant and his men away. If I decide it will really accomplish anything to tell the exact truth about your pulling the wool over my eyes, I'll do so. But if an anonymous phone call will bring the same results, I'll try to keep you out of it. And myself and Gentry, incidentally. So don't waste time with any explanations. Give me his description and what you know about him."

Keeping her voice as flatly unemotional as she could, Lucy complied. She heard a disbelieving grunt from Shayne when she explained that she hadn't seen Jack for years — and then only once briefly in New Orleans, and had no idea where he might go to in Miami. She did explain that he claimed to have been shot by a dead man and had come to her for help because he knew no one else, and knew her address from his sister.

Shayne nodded curtly when she finished. "I'll go downstairs to call that information in. Don't go in the bedroom. If they don't pick him up fast, I'll try to lift his prints from in there for the police to work on."

His set face told her nothing when he returned, but he sat down and took a sip of cognac and told her matter-of-factly, "It's pretty bad. There's a city-wide alarm out for him, and your description may help."

A girl, he went on moodily, "strangled in a rooming-house on Eighteenth Street. A taxi driver picked the fool up a block from the girl, and brought him directly to this address. He remembered him and how oddly he acted, and when he heard about the girl later over radio, he told the police. There was nothing about any shooting," he added, "no gun found on the girl nor any blood around."

"I know there's some mistake, Michael. I just know he wouldn't strangle a girl."

Shayne shook his red head angrily. "It isn't that easy, Lucy. And now, just between the two of us, why did you hold out on me? I can maybe understand you're not calling a doctor after the story he told you. But why not me? I'd have listened to him. If he was in trouble and innocent, I might even have helped him."

She drew in a long breath and lifted round, luminous eyes to Shayne's intent gaze. "I guess it doesn't matter now," she said simply, "but he threatened to tell you we were lovers if I brought you into it."

"What sort of heel do you take me for? If you can't trust me any further than that..."

"What?" she asked faintly.

"Then it's time you started looking for another job."

"I will," she agreed. "Tomorrow morning."

He stopped abruptly in his pacing to glare at her. "Not without giving me two weeks' notice, you won't. You listen to me, Lucy."

"I'll not listen to you," she interrupted defiantly.

He hesitated a further moment, but Lucy did not look up or reply. He turned and jammed his hat down on bristly red hair, stalked out of the room.

Michael Shayne's car was parked in front of Lucy's apartment house, and he gunned it around in a U-turn with wholly unnecessary violence to head toward the
